SEVEN CENTS

Drivers: Watch School Children

With books in arm and the realization that the long-awaited summer vacation ended all too soon, thousands of Lincoln's youngsters will cross school intersections Monday to enter the "doors of knowledge" for another year.

And as mothers breathe a sigh of relief and teachers begin another year of untiring efforts, the lives of these youngsters become the responsibility of a third group — the motorists.

Therefore, motorists are urged to be on the lookout for these youngsters and to observe and obey all posted signs around school crossings.

PRR's First Strike Over

Philadelphia (AP) — The 11-day old Pennsylvania Railroad strike was settled early Monday.

The settlement came after 16 hours of negotiations between representatives of the two striking unions and the PRR who were later joined by the top officials of both sides.

Agreement was reached on issues involving work rules which Michael J. Quill, president of the Transport Workers Union, said he wanted changed to insure job security. Wages were not an issue.

The entire railroad was shutdown for the first time in its 114-year history when the TWU and System Federation Union, representing a combined 20,000 employees, struck Sept. 1. Some 54,000 other PRR employees were furloughed.

Before the settlement the strike gradually had begun to cut into the nation's economy. By Sunday night more than 20,000 employees in related industries which rely on the Pennsy, the nation's largest railroad which stretches from New York to St. Louis, had been laid off.

Some industries began using trucks to haul their raw materials and freight.

Passengers were not noticeably affected. Most commuters began using their autos and formed car pools. Other longer distance travelers turned to alternate means of transportation. Both airlines and bus services reported they had been able to handle them.

Boy, Father Killed By Train On RR Trestle

Omaha (AP) — An Omaha man died while trying to rescue his 9-year-old son who was trapped on a railroad trestle as a Rock Island train bore down on them.

Paul Rodriguez, 30, and his son, Paul Jr., both were hit and killed late Saturday. The mishap occurred on a trestle over Papio Creek in Sarpy County.

The dead man's brothers, Salvatore and Reuben, witnesses to the accident, said they were walking in single file west on the tracks with the boy trailing behind.

The boy apparently froze about 50 feet from the west end of the trestle when the train suddenly approached around a curve. The boy's father ran back to him.

"I yelled to them to jump just as he reached the boy," Salvatore said. "And then the train hit them."

The group had been hunting squirrels.

DONNA AIMS NORTH

East Coast Threatened

COSTLY HURRICANE CLAIMS 11 LIVES IN COASTAL SWEEP

Wilmington, N.C. (UPI) — Hurricane Donna clipped the North Carolina coast Sunday night and, gathering forward speed rapidly, aimed 115-mile-an-hour winds at the populous Eastern Seaboard to the north.

The Miami Weather Bureau ordered urgent hurricane warnings posted as far North as New Hampshire.

The storm, which claimed 11 lives in a multi-million dollar swing through Florida and a brush with the North Carolina coast, increased its forward speed to 35 mph Sunday night as it barreled along the Carolinas' coast. Its momentum was expected to increase to 45 mph by Monday.

The Miami Weather Bureau raised hurricane warnings north of the upper North Carolina coast to Portsmouth, New Hampshire, including Delaware Bay and Lower Chesapeake Bay. Gale warnings and a hurricane watch were ordered from Portsmouth to Eastport, Maine.

Precautions

"All emergency precautions should be taken in the coastal and adjoining areas from eastern North Carolina to southern New England immediately for winds upwards of 115 miles per hour with higher gusts in the coastal areas," the advisory said.

The weather bureau said tides of 5 to 7 feet above normal could be expected along the seaboard.

"All persons in the coastal areas from North Carolina to southern New England" subject to these tides should seek "safe refuge to higher ground immediately," said the bureau.

The North Carolina coast, frequently hit by hurricanes within recent years, took emergency precautions. Residents of outlying beaches were evacuated to Beaufort and Morehead City.

Standby

The national guard went on standby alert at Morehead City, the state's second largest port behind Wilmington. Authorities feared the hurricane winds would strike the coast near high tide.

Donna claimed its first victim in North Carolina Sunday afternoon when Electrician's Technician 3-c John C. Flood, 41, of Wilmington was electrocuted while repairing an antenna atop the customs house. A gust of wind blew the antenna into a high tension wire.

The hurricane caused 10 deaths while cutting a multi-million dollar swath through Florida.

It increased its forward speed to 35 mph Sunday night after a movement of around 19-20 mph most of the day along the Georgia and South Carolina coast.

10 Injured

Gusts of 70 mph struck Sullivan's Island, S.C., while winds of 45 mph were recorded at Charleston, S.C., which was hit by two tornadoes Sunday. At least 10 persons were injured by the tornadoes which also hit Garden City, S.C., 100 miles to the north of Charleston.

A tornado struck downtown Charleston Sunday afternoon in the midst of preparations for Donna, blowing away signs, power lines and poles and knocking out windows. Several minor injuries were reported and one person was hospitalized. N. E. Terry, a representative of the American Red Cross Disaster Committee, said he and several other motorists saw the tornado coming and jumped into a roadside ditch.

Passed Over

"While we lay there, the tornado passed overhead," said Terry. "We could see great sticks of lumber and other debris swirling around in it."

Another tornado struck the resort town of Garden City, S.C., further up the coast, demolishing 5 houses and a restaurant in a two-block area. No injuries were reported.

The hurricane left behind damages estimated at "many millions" of dollars in Florida. But authorities said that advance preparations had kept the damage and the death toll down.

Youth Who Smashed Car Into Transformer Admits 6 Auto Thefts

By Roger Wait

A 17-year-old Gibbon youth who led Police Lt. Bob Myers on a high-speed 23-block chase in a stolen car early Thursday was arrested by Myers Sunday morning at 17th and O.

The youth has admitted stealing 6 cars, Myers said, including the one in which he smashed into a power transformer near 33rd and Y, causing $5,000 damage to the transformer.

He remembers parts of the events from the smashup that turned the car of Roy Toland of 3328 O into a total wreck until he climbed over the State Fairgrounds fence, Myers said.

The lieutenant pieced this story together: Stealing his first car in Gibbon about 9:30 p.m. Sept. 4, the youth drove to Minden where lawmen gave chase.

Managing to lose the police car just south of Minden, the youth, Myers said, abandoned it, walked 1/2 mile and stole a 2nd car which he drove to a point south of Hastings.

Walked Mile

The youth then walked one mile and stole a 3rd car from a farmyard near Hastings, Myers said.

From there he drove into Kansas and got almost to Kansas City when he decided to return to Nebraska, Myers continued.

Abandoning the 3rd auto near Dunbar, Myers added, the Gibbon teen-ager stole a 4th car in Dunbar and drove it to Lincoln, abandoning it Sept. 5 on J between 33rd and Elmwood Ave.

The youth then wandered about southeast Lincoln awhile and finally took a 5th car from 36th and B. He drove to a park and slept all night, the lieutenant said.

Grand Island Pair Are Electrocuted

Phillips (AP)—Two men were electrocuted late Sunday on the Grant Farmline turkey farm southwest of here.

Hamilton County Sheriff Ralph Spry identified them as Leo Duerling, in his early 20s, and Lonnie Willis, 18, both of Grand Island.

He said the two men were working with Palmlen and had turned a section of irrigation pipe on end to knock some dirt out of it. The pipe came in contact with a high tension wire.

After eating breakfast Tuesday morning, the Gibbon youth abandoned the 5th car on N between 17th and 18th.

Last Car Thursday
The 6th, and final, car the youth took, Myers explained, was Toland's. That was about 1:30 a.m. Thursday.

About 2 hours later, Myers spotted the car at 21st and O, speeding. He gave chase up 22nd to Y and then east on Y at speeds up to 70 mph until the youth jumped the curb at 33rd and crashed into the transformer, Myers related.

The break came late Saturday when officers answered a disturbance call in Lincoln. Two prowlers jumped out a window; one came back, but it wasn't the Gibbon youth, Myers said.

Finally, about 7:20 a.m. Sunday as he was driving home, Myers said he spotted the youth walking west on O near 18th.

Myers said he went around the block and picked up the teen-ager who offered no resistance. The boy had been changing shirts, and both were like those stolen from a clothesline near 33rd and Y, Myers said.

The youth was being held at City Jail early Monday.

Ghanian Forces Block Lumumba

Leopoldville, The Congo (AP) — A show of United Nations machine guns thwarted Sunday an attempt by Patrice Lumumba to seize the Leopoldville radio.

Blue-helmeted Ghanian troops dug around the radio station building as Lumumba, the deposed Congolese premier, led about 20 armed soldiers toward it.

"I called you here to help," Lumumba shouted to Ghana Lt. George Short, an Englishman.

"I will fire if you don't leave," Short replied calmly. "Excellency, don't risk your life," screamed Serge Michel, Lumumba's press advisor who was sent to the Congo by the Algerian National Liberation Front.

As Lumumba turned around, a half a dozen bewildered Congolese soldiers handed their rifles to grinning Ghanians.

Their arms were returned later and sullen-faced, they drove off in a truck, after staring at the Ghanians for about half an hour.

One of Lumumba's prime points of ire at the United Nations has been the U.N. seizure of Leopoldville's radio station. He urgently wants it back so he can talk to the Congolese people and exercise his persuasive brand of oratory.

For two days Lumumba has been threatening to seize control of the station closed by the United Nations last Tuesday to prevent inflammatory statements.

You Will See

Saturday night Michel told newsmen "you will see what the Congolese army can do." He also promised that "the airport will be ours."

He said United Arab Republic paratroopers guarding sprawling Ndjili Airport "are with us all the way."

Earlier, a U.N. military team had moved out to enforce a truce in the civil war in Katanga and Kasai provinces.

The radio station takeover attempt resembled a Sunday picnic rather than a potentially explosive incident. Scores of newsmen and Europeans stood on the broad Boulevard Albert to watch the Ghanians deploy. Several European women paraded in tight slacks in front of the British-made Bren machine guns and the cordon of troops.

"You are laughing now," shouted a civilian Congolese official to newsmen. "But one day we will kill you all with our bare hands."

Truce Makers

The U.N. truce delegation, a 4-officer team commanded by Col. S. M. Mollersward of Sweden, flew off to set up headquarters in Elisabethville, the capital of secessionist Katanga Province.

While the United Nations went ahead with action to stop further bloodshed in the Congo, the Lumumba government announced "there has been no cease-fire in Kasai or in Katanga."

In Elisabethville, however, Premier-President Moïse Tshombe of Katanga and Albert Kalonji, head of the so-called mineral state in Kasai, announced they have agreed "in principle" to the cease-fire. A U.N. spokesman quoted Kalonji as saying the U.N. would have a difficult job in enforcing the cease-fire in the intertribal fighting in Kasai.

In two separate communications, Lumumba authorities assailed the U.N. announcement setting up a truce supervision organization. The statements again accused the international body of interference in the Congo's internal affairs.

A Year Ago Today...

By Don Walton

Exactly one year ago Monday, Gov. Ralph G. Brooks stood in dazzling white formal dinner attire before hundreds of Midwestern Democrats at Kansas City.

Three seats to his right at the festive head table sat an attentive, appreciative friend — Harry Truman.

Before him, the governor looked into a sea of faces gathered in the spacious ballroom at the elegant Muehlbach Hotel.

It was a triumphant evening for Ralph Brooks.

Throughout the past two days, at this Midwest Democratic Conference, he had shared the spotlight with Truman.

Brooks had held 3 press conferences, one with the former President who had soundly endorsed the governor as a possible keynote speaker at the 1960 Democratic national convention.

Only hours before the gala dinner, Brooks had served as chairman of a farm committee session, chief business of the Kansas City gathering.

Now, he sensed the restlessness of a tightly-packed crowd which had overreached and more than had its fill of speakers, 6 of which had preceded Brooks.

So, the governor swung into a tight, 4-minute combination of entertaining anecdotes he had polished as a popular after-dinner speaker before his election.

With the crowd in the palm of his hands, Brooks reached for his closing. "What are the 3 sweetest words in the English language?" he shouted.

"Are they 'I love you'?" "Are they 'a tax refund'?" "No, they are 'I am finished.'"

Thundering bursts of laughter and applause greeted the fiery little Nebraskan as he took his seat.

On this bright but somber fall morning, R. G., those words are no longer sweet to your friends.

Jack Urges Utilization Of Defense Workers

San Diego, Calif. (AP) — Sen. John F. Kennedy said Sunday the Republican administration is endangering national security by failing to supply jobs for skilled defense workers who drift on into other work.

Kennedy was winding up his politicking in California, and preparing to plunge deep into the heart of Texas—and almost certain religious controversy. He has a date with a ministerial association in Houston Monday night.

But in this defense-minded city, with its aircraft plants and its Naval base, Kennedy turned to problems of security.

In his prepared address, he said:

"Here, as throughout the nation, there are able-bodied and skilled men—men who can work and who want to work—but are unable to find work."

"And here — as throughout the nation — the idleness of these men has meant a decline in American vitality and American strength."

Here's the way Kennedy looked at San Diego's unemployment:

"When these skilled production workers scatter to other jobs and other locations, our national security is the loser."

Kennedy turned to a theme he has often used on this Western swing: that the Republicans aren't moving fast enough on national defense.

"Today our proud fleet of bombers, the Strategic Air Command, is threatened with destruction before it can even leave the ground," he said

NIXON ATTACKS RELIGIOUS FIGHT

Vice President Nixon said Sunday night it would be "tragic" if the presidential election was decided by Sen. John F. Kennedy's Catholic religion. See story page 2.

Crash Injuries Kill Omahan

Omaha (AP) — Mrs. Barbara Louise Cannon, 36, of Omaha, died Sunday about 12 hours after she was hurt in a one-car accident in an Omaha residential area.

Investigators said the Cannon station wagon driven by the victim apparently went out of control and slammed into a light pole. The woman's husband, James, 37, was injured.

The death raised the state highway fatality toll for the year to 183, compared with 232 a year ago.

Crash Kills Oxford Man

Rushville (AP) — A 23-year-old Oxford man, Maurice E. Woodruff, was killed Sunday when the car he was driving left State Highway 87 on a curve and overturned several times 7 miles north of Rushville.

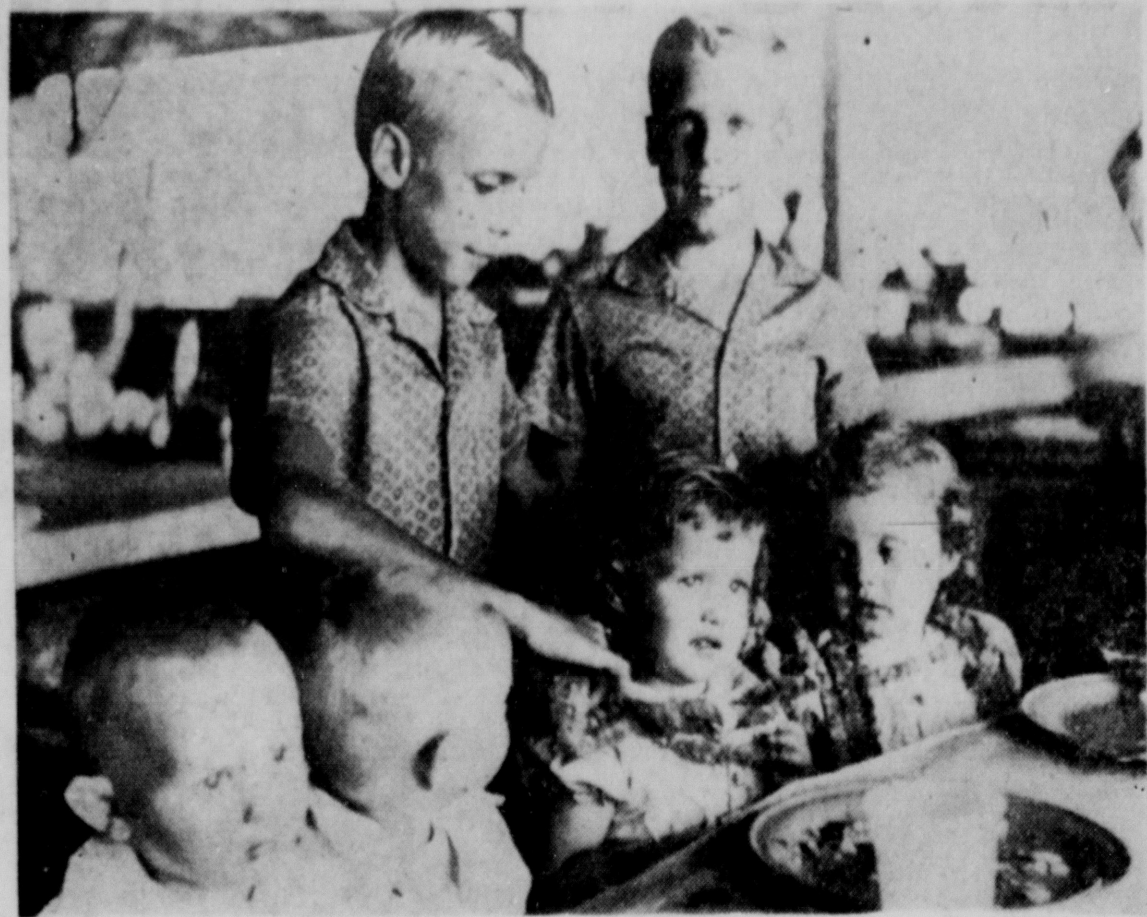

Woodruff was thrown about 100 feet from the car and died instantly. His body was found by a passerby a short time after the accident.

He had been working for a Holdrege electrical contractor, who had a contract at Pine Ridge, S.D.

Religion Fight Tragic—Dick

Washington (UPI) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon said Sunday night it would be "tragic" if the November presidential election was decided primarily or "even substantially" by Sen. John F. Kennedy's Catholic religion.

Nixon rejected the support of anyone who endorsed him solely because they were opposed to his Democratic rival's religious beliefs. He also

Educational TV Distribution Being Studied By Educators

Problems inherent in devising a scheme for distribution of instructional television programs in schools are being discussed by a group of 10 prominent educators from different states in Lincoln.

The two-day meeting, ending today is in conjunction with a national study of the matter being conducted by the University of Nebraska.

The group will outline definite procedures for a national survey which is being financed by a $47,500 grant from the U.S. Office of Education, approved by the Board of Regents.

Dr. W. C. Meierhenry of the University of Nebraska Teachers College said many schools throughout the country desire taped television instruction but there is no organized distribution system to provide it.

Such a program, he said, would probably operate similarly to film distribution systems now used by state education departments.

Co-directors of the project are Dr. Meierhenry and Jack McBride, director of KUON-TV. Don Grassmeyer of Lincoln is project co-ordinator.

The regional consultants are: Dr. Gale R. Adkins, director of radio and television research, University of Kansas; Dr. William H. Ewing, associate director of Telecommunications Service, Ohio State University; Miss June Dilworth, coordinator of educational television, King County Schools, Seattle, Wash.; Dr.

Reimer of Beatrice offered this encouragement: "If you get past the first 6 months, you're ok. From then on, if they're like my Jimmy and Jerry, they're their own entertainment."

Nixon said he had not discussed the religious issue with Dr. Peale since the clergyman made his statement following a meeting here last week with other protestant clergymen.

But Nixon said he had received letters from other Protestant churchmen, some of which deplored anti-Catholic statements in connection with the political campaign and some of which endorsed Dr. Peale's view.

Nixon said his big problem was how to keep the religious issue out of the campaign. He said everytime he answers a question about it the subject becomes legitimate news. The issues, he said, are any of those things the candidates talk about.

Set Deadline

For this reason, he suggested that he and Kennedy set a date after which there would be no more talk about religion.

In declaring that he had no doubts about Kennedy's loyalty to his country and his determination to abide by the constitution, Nixon said "I don't believe there is a religious issue as far as Sen. Kennedy is concerned."

On the Communist threat, Nixon said the United States might have averted the "Castro take-over" in Cuba if the economic aid program recently proposed by President Eisenhower and approved by Congress had been put into effect 5 years ago.

Other than that, he said it was difficult to see what the United States could have done to prevent the seizure of power by Cuban Premier Fidel Castro. But he said there was reason to hope that the new aid program would prevent such seizures in other Latin American nations.

Some Aid

He also said some of the recommendations he submitted to Eisenhower after his Latin American tour last year had been put into effect. He mentioned an exchange of students and labor leaders and joint commodity studies affecting such goods as coffee.

Nixon reiterated his belief that the United States was stronger than Russia in all fields — military, economic, education and science. But he said it cannot be complacent and the next President must adopt policies to keep the nation strong.

Nixon said he had no plans to see Nikita S. Khrushchev when the Soviet Premier visits the United Nations later this month, and that he disagreed with suggestions that both he and Kennedy should confer with the Russian leader.

He said that if Khrushchev should suggest disarmament talks with President Eisenhower, he feels the chief executive would be willing to engage in them. But he asserted that it is "Khrushchev's turn" to make such an offer, since up to now the premier has "blocked the road" on disarmament.

Mosquito Abatement Expert Is JC Speaker

... Tuesday Meeting Open To Public

A nationally known authority on mosquito abatement—John Biedler, director of the Indian River Mosquito Abatement District, Vero Beach, Fla., will speak at a public meeting on the mosquito control problem at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Junior Chamber of Commerce Office, 12th and P Streets.

The Jaycees, sponsors of the meeting, have extended an invitation to all Lincoln citizens to attend the public forum.

According to Donn Davis, Jaycees president, the meeting will define the local problem, discuss possible solutions and attempt to formulate a plan for long-range solution.

"The spraying by the county will do much to alleviate the immediate problem but will serve only as temporary measure," Davis said. "The adult mosquitoes will die but the eggs will remain and hatch. The problem will not be abated and will re-occur."

Permanent System

"A permanent control system is needed to eliminate the basic breeding to keep costs within reason," Davis added.

Dr. Gresham Yeager, chairman of the Jaycees community health committee, will moderate the discussion.

Other participants will be Dr. Joseph Anderson, director of the Lincoln-Lancaster County Health Department; Theo Filipi, state sanitation department director; William Rapp, state entomologist; Col. John R. Grunwell, commander of the 818th Medical group at the Lincoln Air Force Base, and Davis.

AF Transport Crash Kills 8

Denver (AP) — Eight persons were killed Sunday in the crash of an Air Force C123 transport plane high in the Rocky Mountains west of Denver.

A ground search party from Lowry Air Force Base reached the site shortly after 9 p.m. and reported that all aboard were killed.

The twin-engine plane, flying from Lowry to Hill Air Force Base in Utah, crashed about 55 miles west of here in the area around 11,314-foot Berthoud Pass.

The plane smashed into a rocky, forested area and burned. Parts of the wreckage were scattered over 200 yards of mountain terrain.

Identity of the victims was withheld pending notification of the next of kin.

The wreckage was first reached by Lt. Robert Pilkington, a member of a search helicopter from Lowry AFB. No effort will be made during the night to remove the bodies.

Hurricane Donna's 150-mile an hour winds and huge tidal waves cut off the lower Florida Keys from the mainland and left some 45,000 persons isolated except for boat and air transportation.

The Navy will cooperate in ferrying the material to Marathon while the Army will work south from Tavernier.

Gov. Dwight Burney To Take Oath Of Office At 9 a.m. Today

By Betty Person
Governor Dwight Burney will take the oath of his new office Monday at 9 a.m. in the executive suite at the State Capitol.

Supreme Court Justice Edward F. Carter will administer the oath to Burney whose term as governor will end in 16 weeks and 3 days. The 68-year-old Hartington farmer, legislator and two-term lieutenant governor brings to the office more than a new face, for his affiliation with the Republican party means an end to 20 months and one day of Democratic control over state affairs.

Burney emphasized again Sunday, however, that he will go slow in tackling the maze of state problems which face every new chief executive.

He has announced only one appointment thus far — that of former State Sen. John Beaver of Beemer as his administrative assistant.

Robert Conrad, who served as administrative assistant to the late Governor Ralph Brooks throughout his term in office, offered his resignation to Burney when he phoned him Friday to inform him of the passing of Gov. Brooks.

At the same time, Conrad offered the complete co-operation of himself and Gov. Brooks' office staff to aid in the transition from one administration to another.

Gov. Burney said Sunday he appreciated the offer and wanted them to remain until he and Beaver could take firm hold.

As for other state officials, Burney said his plans are to make a thorough study of each situation.

Quered on a report that he will make John Hossack the state engineer, rather than acting state engineer, Burney replied that the report was "a little ahead" of things as they are.

Study Engineer Matter
Burney said, "and if everything is satisfactory, I think he should be the head man."

It also has been reported that Burney may replace State Tax Commissioner Forrest Johnson, but the governor said Sunday that this was premature.

"I don't even know the man," he said. "I'm not going to do anything about his job for now," he continued. The same thing applies to all appointees, Burney said. He noted that he knows most of the other appointees.

Gov. and Mrs. Burney plan to take up residence in the Governor's Mansion eventually, but they want to give Mrs. Brooks all the time she needs to get settled.

Governor Burney was born in 1892 on the farm near Hartington where he still lives. He attended rural schools and graduated from Hartington High School in 1910.

He attended South Dakota University for two years and taught in Turton, S.D., for two years. In 1915, Burney and Mrs. Burney, the former Edna Wales, moved to the Burney family farm.

The couple has 4 sons: Dr. Donald E. of Chicago, a chemical research specialist for Standard Oil of Indiana; Dr. Dwight Jr. of Omaha, an orthopedic surgeon; and Willard W. and Howard Keith, both Hartington farmers.

Demo Senate Nominee To Be Named Thursday

By Don Walton
Nebraska Democrats call a halt to politicking Monday to pay last respects to Gov. Ralph G. Brooks.

Following the funeral and burial of the governor, party members face a sudden deadline Thursday in choosing a new senatorial candidate.

The 86-member state central committee will convene at 8 p.m., Thursday in the Hotel Yancey at Grand Island to name a candidate to replace Gov. Brooks on the November ballot.

It still appeared likely Sunday that either Robert Conrad, Brooks' administrative assistant, or State Agriculture Director Pearl Finigan would be the ultimate choice.

Neither is actively seeking the nomination; neither has publicly said he would accept it if it were offered.

Jensen Studies Law
State Sen. Hans Jensen is seeking legal advice to determine whether he might be eligible for consideration.

Election experts claim that he cannot be considered since the deadline for his possible withdrawal from his legislative race has now passed.

Jensen, however, wishes to determine whether (since he is unopposed in the legislative bid) he might not resign from the Legislature, rather than withdraw his filing.

A dark horse possibility is Clair Callan of Odell, whom Brooks defeated in the May primary.

Also mentioned are Mrs. Ralph (Darlene) Brooks, H. L. Blackledge of Kearney, and Frank W. Reed of Lincoln.

Curtis Active
The Democratic nominee will run smack into entrenched Republican Sen. Carl Curtis, whose bid for reelection has been actively organized for many a week.

Democrats filled one gap on their ticket over the weekend. State Sen. Norman Otto of Kearney, 42-year-old contractor and 3-term legislator, was named as the party's candidate for lieutenant governor.

Action was taken at a state central committee meeting in Lincoln.

Mrs. William Grubbs, wife of the state insurance director, was named state chairman of Dollars-for-Democrats.

Woman Killed In Dive Over Falls
Niagara Falls, N.Y. (AP) — A woman was swept over the American Falls here Sunday after she waded into the Niagara River Rapids about 300 feet from Prospect Point, police said.

Niagara Park police said a small crowd near the observation railing saw her go over the brink.

The body was not immediately recovered. Police said it is probably wedged in the rocks at the base of the falls.

Police said the woman was tentatively identified by papers found in a purse on the bank of the rapids as Marguerite Allan, 42, of Philadelphia, Pa.

Windows Broken — Robert Opp reported to police 5 windows on the south side of his house under construction at 4000 Spruce were broken by someone wielding a gas pipe and throwing clods of dirt. A Gas Co. tool cart was also found overturned near the house.

Historical Society Closed — Dr. W. D. Aeschbacher, director of the State Historical Society building, announced that the building will be closed from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday for Gov. Ralph Brooks' funeral.

Camping Gear Taken — Fishing and camping gear worth $186.85 was taken from a locked garage at 328 S. 17th, police said. Arthur E. Mach of 1701 L, renter of the garage, owned the equipment, police added.

Car Damaged — Everett C. Beights of 827 El Avado Ave. told police someone backed into the right side of his car while it was parked in the American Legion lot at 58th and O, causing about $75 damage.

Arson and Burglary Attempt — A would-be burglar tried to enter Westling's Garage at 6033 Havelock Ave., police said, by burning a locked wooden door in the rear basement. Firemen put out the blaze.

Hay Fever Patients now open Nose-Sinus Zone with New 3-Layer Tablet

Clear, free breathing restored in minutes as congested nasal zone is decongested — stops sneezing, watery, itching eyes

Chicago, Ill. (Special) Observers here are hailing a remarkable new advance against the most unrelenting misery of hay fever — congestion in the nose-sinus zone.

A way has been found to decongest this congestion. This is the central fact which has aroused so much interest on the part of hay fever sufferers who have never found satisfactory relief from other medications.

Up to now, nose drops, eye drops, inhalers, sprays and antihistamines have given some measure of relief. But today you can expect much more complete comfort. This new compound reaches all the congested nasal areas from all sides, through the blood stream. It opens stuffed-up, blocked nasal passages. Free breathing is restored in minutes. Stops unpleasant sneezing; watery, itching eyes are cleared.

Lincoln's Many Millions

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

With all the figuring of statistics that is done these days, one would imagine that there was hardly any set of numbers that somebody could not supply you with. The census supplies us with endless reports of a statistical nature as do other branches of the federal and state government. Reports on retail trade volumes are numerous as are other business and industrial tabulations.

But a recent request for the total annual payroll in Lincoln produced a number of dead ends. Sources which would normally be expected to have such a figure could not produce it. The search went on for some time but the figure was never found. Apparently, no one knows what the total annual payroll is in Lincoln. Exactly what value this is, we have not bothered to figure out but it did bother us to know that any such statistic should remain unknown. Somehow, an unknown statistic had all the earmarks of an unwanted or lost child. Undoubtedly, a lot of money was being paid out for wages and salaries in Lincoln but nobody knew just how much.

One could start by finding out what local governing bodies pay out in annual wages. Counting even relief, the county pays out in wages and salaries a total of $1,039,530 a year. That is a good piece of change, in anybody's language. It is impressive, regardless of its significance. But if you were staggered at that, take a look at the city, which pays out $4,773,320 a year. Now, there is really a lot of money — more than $1 million of it going into salaries at Lincoln General Hospital. Hospital care would have to come at a pretty good rate just to meet that expense and salaries are only a part of Lincoln General's total budget of more than $1,700,000.

But if you think the city is putting a lot of money into salaries, take a look at the $7,180,841 that is paid out by the Lincoln School District for its personnel. There is certainly no question that that is a lot of money. Of course, it is divided among a great many people but it still takes a good tax levy to meet the obligation. This gives us a total of more than $13 million paid out in wages and salaries by three local subdivisions of government.

The public memory is short. But the events of the Al Sarena investigation still ring a bell with many. It started during the first years of the Eisenhower administration when the Department of Interior, under Douglas McKay, allowed a claim for 475 acres of the Rogue River National Forest in Oregon. It handed the land to a two-brother-owned Alabama corporation known as Al Sarena Mines, Inc. The price was $2,375. The tract contained an estimated quarter of a million dollars worth of merchantable timber worth perhaps 100 times the price the company paid. The defense for this unconscionable deal was that the company was not after the timber, but the mineral deposits. Upon investigation this story lacked conviction, especially since the Interior Department had been mighty cavalier in the matter of ore analysis and based its judgment mostly on a report handed in by the bidding corporation.

The Al Sarena matter together with the Interior Department's successful efforts in frustrating a public effort to develop the Snake River of Idaho where it runs through Hell's Canyon and could have been one of the nation's most beneficial multipurpose programs, bore most heavily on Secretary Douglas McKay, especially after Hell's canyon rights had been conveyed to the Idaho Power Company for electrical production only. McKay resigned and later was roundly defeated by Oregon voters when he attempted to get back into Washington as their senator.

Now, some eight years later the question comes up, Did Al Sarena actually get the land for mining purposes? Senator Morse of Oregon supplies an answer. Mining the tract has not been emphasized, he says. According to him Al Sarena cut 2 million board feet of lumber from it of the value of $110,000. Then it sold its claim to an Oregon logger who has since cut an additional 4½ million board feet of lumber.

Any news of disagreement within the communist orbit is welcomed on our side of the world with relief and hope. Perhaps the communist movement is flying apart and in its disintegration will go all of our fears and cares. It is a thing to hope for, but not to count on. It is a thing that invites detachment and negativism which in nowise provide the security one must expect from positivism with accent on our own saving deeds and diligent dedication to free democratic principles.

There is not much hope in the current disagreement between Chinese communism and Khrushchev's Russian variety. The Chinese wish to employ extreme war while Russia currently seeks to co-exist, the Chinese welcome an all-around bombing because it, as yet, has little to lose except people and, therefore, conceivably could be the ultimate winner. Russia would not mind bombing its adversaries but feels that being bombed in return would be downright calamitous. But both agree the rest of the world must be done in. What we have here is not a symptom of communist collapse, but rather an argument between two dedicated assassins over which would be the preferable method of disposing of the victim. It is about the same as two cannibals having a row over a missionary. One wishes to eat him raw. The other wants him boiled with seasoning. Such doesn't offer much comfort to the missionary.

Some day perhaps communism will fly apart, but disintegration could happen here, too, and its symptoms should be closely regarded. When citizens of a country begin to collect into cynical or intolerant groups, putting the bar sinister against any shading of color or race or faith, preferring such over the common requirements of citizenship and national unity, then there is a symptom which needs treatment.

A Living Mark

Any worthwhile organization does many things for which it never becomes known. The Women's Division of the Chamber of Commerce is no exception to this. This is a group of women devoted to one thing—making Lincoln the best city in the land in which to live. They are highly successful at this too, even though all their efforts are seldom fully known.

But the Women's Division has one project which leaves a living mark upon the community. That project is its park development program. A great deal of the effort here has gone into development of Oak Lake Park. What will amount to confiscation of this park for the Interstate Highway access route to Lincoln has lent a note of disappointment to the program.

But all the work at Oak Lake will not have been in vain. It is the value which the Women's Division has built up at this park and its perseverance in protecting it that will be responsible for whatever replacement is ultimately made for the area. The state intends to make payment in kind for what it gets at Oak Lake and the results are likely to be highly pleasing to everyone.

More recently, the Women's Division has concentrated on development of Woods Park at 33rd and O. A $2,000 contribution for installation of a watering system in the park has just been turned over to the city. A new shelter house has already been completed in the area through the further generosity of the women. These are improvements which will be of lasting benefit and enjoyment to all the people of Lincoln. The Women's Division can be proud of the outstanding civic record it has established over the years.

It still doesn't tell us, however, what the total Lincoln payroll is. In fact, what that total is was never found out but if no one has the figure, there is one that might be suggested. If no one has the true or official figure, no one can argue with what is suggested. The suggested figure is — well, first let us see how you could arrive at it. According to the federal government's statistical abstract of the United States for 1959, Nebraska had a total personal income of $2,640,000,000 in 1957 and total wage and salary disbursements of $1,355,000,000.

Thus, it can be assumed that wages and salaries equal about 51.33 per cent of total personal income. Total personal income for 1959 is figured at about $3,000,000,000 for the state. Thus wages and salaries for the state in 1959 would have been about $1,539,900,000. This, however, is still not the figure for Lincoln.

Reliable sources estimate that Lancaster County would represent about 10 per cent of the state and Lincoln about 85 per cent of the county. This would make Lincoln representing about 8.5 per cent of the state. If this is true, it would give Lincoln a total annual payroll of $130,891,500. This would include state government payrolls — the University of Nebraska, etc.

It would include only that Lincoln Air Force Base payroll going to personnel living within Lincoln. The total personal income increase from 1957 through 1959 hits 13.63 per cent or about $360,000,000 in two years for the state. Of this amount, $184,788,000 would be wages and salaries. Lincoln's share of this would be 8.5 per cent or $15,707,180. This would mean that Lincoln's payroll increased $7,853,590 in both 1958 and 1959, on an average basis. This, of course, assumes that wages and salaries increase at the same rate as does total personal income.

There are, in fact, a number of assumptions in this whole business but the figures appear to be reasonable and who can question them with any degree of authority? You may say, "so what?" to all of this but think of the stir that would be created if a nearly $8 million annual payroll were suddenly added to Lincoln's economy. Yet, that much may well have been added in just a year and nobody even knows it.

DREW PEARSON

Charge Texas Oil Money After Jack

WASHINGTON. — Vice President Nixon is so anxious to disassociate himself from the anti-Catholic hatchet work in the presidential campaign that he has warned his workers not to discuss the religious issue even with friends and relatives.

Yet from sources close to Nixon, this column has learned that indirectly he is encouraging evangelist Billy Graham to speak out on the religious issue. Approaches reportedly have been made through wealthy Texans who have contributed heavily to Graham's Christian crusades.

Nixon personally sat in the same box with Graham's father-in-law, Dr. L. Nelson Bell, the last time the evangelist spoke in Washington several weeks ago. Bell returned to Washington only last week to participate in a closed-door Protestant conference on the Catholic question.

He assured this column, however, that the vice president never mentioned the religious issue during their visit together.

By a curious coincidence, reporters discovered Billy Graham's former traveling partner, the Rev. J. E. S. Moody, now of the Owensboro, Ky., First Baptist Church, in GOP National Chairman Thruston Morton's office the other day.

What the reporters didn't know, however, was that Moody came to Washington in response to a call from Vice President Nixon's office. The first call came from William Stover, a Nixon aide, during the Republican convention. Two subsequent calls finally brought Moody to Washington where he visited both Stover and Morton.

He reported to Stover on a private talk with Kentucky's Democratic governor Bert Combs who, Moody said, confided to him that the Democrats are in trouble in Kentucky over the religious and race issues. Otherwise, Moody claimed he didn't mention religion.

"If Billy Graham's name came up," he added, "It was dropped in 10 seconds, and I remember it."

Moody also insisted that Nixon's office didn't pay for his trip. He stayed in the Texas Gas Transmission Company's private suite at the fashionable Shoreham Hotel.

Meanwhile, Texas millionaire Carr Collins is still pressuring prominent Texas Baptists to jump on the Nixon bandwagon. Collins sparked the drive in Texas against Catholic candidate Al Smith in 1928 and is now organizing the campaign against Catholic candidate Jack Kennedy.

Kennedy Pursuing 'Growth' Challenge

TOURING WITH KENNEDY — It is the objective of the Democratic presidential candidate, Sen. John F. Kennedy, in this first tour back and forth across the country to seize the initiative on what he believes to be the central issue of the campaign. That is the power of government to act in order to further a growing and expanding America.

He talked about lead and zinc and the small mines in Idaho and how President Eisenhower had killed a measure passed by both Senate and House that would have provided relief. In Spokane, the center of the great wheat-producing region of eastern Washington, he talked about the problem of the wheat surplus and what would have to be done about it. And in Detroit and Michigan's other motor centers, he proposed a far-reaching program for solving the joblessness that will inevitably result from the rapid spread of automation in the decade of the 'sixties.

In short, the image that is emerging is that of a New Dealer who speaks with confidence of the powers of the presidency to reinvigorate what he charges has become a complacent and laggard America. Kennedy has chosen to call it the New Frontier. But the accent is that of the New Deal, and introducer after introducer, coming up with "the man who will be the next president of the United States," pauses enroute to invoke the name of Franklin Roosevelt and suggest, if only by implication, that the tall, slender young man waiting to be heard is another FDR.

One difficulty for Kennedy is to make the case for a sluggish America without laying himself open to Vice-President Nixon's accusation that he is downgrading the United States and giving aid and comfort to the Communists. But he seems to be finding a way out of this dilemma.

But for Candidate Kennedy there is another and perhaps more serious difficulty. That is to draw a line that will not be blurred by Nixon's tactic, which is in his turn to promise to build on the Eisenhower record.

On the question of whether the nation's rate of growth has seriously fallen behind that of the Soviet Union, the vice-president before the conventions took a scornful attitude. When, however, he signed with Gov. Rockefeller on the eve of the Republican convention the compact of Fifth Avenue, he seemed to change his position.

For the Rockefeller-Nixon compact calls for a greatly accelerated rate of growth, with the implication that this process must be helped along by the government. What he chooses to say about this in the days just ahead should have a great deal of bearing on the campaign and perhaps on the outcome of the election.

But Sen. Kennedy, in undertaking to draw the issue of growth and the role of government in a rapidly expanding economy, has taken a big jump into the future which he sees in glowing colors. He is attacking directly and vigorously the so-called tight money policy of the Eisenhower administration, charging that it has cost the American people gains they might otherwise have made.

Wonders Of The Universe

With the loss of Discoverer XII, scientists did not have a chance to test their recovery techniques to retrieve a payload from space. With time, it will become more and more imperative that physical recovery be made. How do engineers and scientists attack this problem?

I asked this question of Donald E. Mullen, one of General Electric's bright young men who was involved with the recovery of payloads from space. His answer was fascinating.

It dealt with the design philosophy of recovery methods for two separate problems — a small data capsule from a ballistic missile, and the re-entry recovery vehicle of the Discoverer satellite.

The essence of the whole approach was that the Missile and Space Vehicle Department engineers would put one of everything they could think of — within weight and space limits — into the package to assure recovery.

One engineer thought of radar. Why not put "chaff" — the aluminum streamers which are excellent reflectors for radar signals — in the capsule? This was fine but at the same time why not make the parachute and shrouds out of metallized material to also help reflect radar signals? Another engineer thought of a radio beacon to track it by radio as it descended. Thus the radio beacon was included. Suppose it came down at night or it got dark after it came down, wouldn't a flashing light be a good idea so that it could be seen at night and at a distance? This scheme sounded good. The result was a high powered strobe lamp being incorporated in the capsule.

Once the capsule was down, and if its radio went dead, it had to be detected in the water. This is a most difficult task for World War II records disclose that high flying aviators sometimes missed entire flotillas in intensive air reconnaissance. To overcome this, an aluminum slick was proposed. When the capsule hit the water, the aluminum powder was spread over the water surface to coat a large area.

The light reflected from this giant mirror proved an excellent marker for search parties. To help find the capsule it was painted with fluorescent colors so that it would be readily visible in the daytime. Incidentally, these scientists also found that in actual practice they had to use a shark repellent for it appeared that sharks truly loved bright colored data capsules. (There is no report on the type of indigestion suffered by the sharks from a tussle with a data capsule.)

Capsules also could carry a "sof" bomb. This a device to detonate beneath the water surface and set up sound waves so that the sonar ranging stations could pick up the sound and triangulate on it for position finding.

Finally, indicated Mr. Mullen, there was also the conventional booster vehicle tracking system used to determine the probable impact point. This not only gave the capsule position but also dispersion in range and direction to give searchers the area in which the data capsule was most likely to be found.

From this list of recovery aids, specific capsule designs were made. The missile data capsule was a small, free-falling body without a parachute. It used the strobe light, radio beacon, sea marker, fluorescent paint and sofar bomb. The earliest attempts to find this 18-inch ball in the South Atlantic were quite frustrating. Now, with reliable boosters and well-honed procedures, recovery is routine.

The Discoverer re-entry recovery design uses a parachute, with chaff packed in the folds. It, too, has a strobe light, radio beacon, sea marker and a fluorescent paint. It's designed to be "air-snatched" — hooked over a trapeze bar trailing under a recovery aircraft. All other system functions performing correctly, they expect to hook the next Discoverer neatly as it nears the end of its trip from space.

Perfecting our recovery techniques is essential, for this is but a prelude to the recovery of our Mercury astronauts from space.

Complete Control

Lincoln, Neb. All the mosquito control has been north of O Street. If mosquitoes travel the way it is claimed, it won't be long until they are back again.

I wonder if the officials ever drive on West A Street. We have so many mosquitoes that our children can't go outside even in the daytime. We spent nearly a hundred dollars for medical bills last year because of this.

There are several swamp areas that were created by the Burlington Railroad when they built the tracks. I called the Health Department and the Burlington several times last year and again this summer, with no results as yet.

If we're going to get rid of mosquitoes, let's do it right and get them all, not just a handful. We are just as nearly eaten up by them as the other people are. And I'd like to let my children out to play, knowing they won't be bothered and that we won't have another doctor bill to face.

I think it's time Lincoln went all-out to protect its population. Let's get the job done right and have it a complete one.

District Meeting

The office of Nebraska commissioner of education has been in operation for seven years. The office is in charge of Dr. Freeman Decker who serves under the direction of the State Board of Education made up of five elected members. It is almost exactly like the school systems in the various school districts of the state except that it is on the state level.

It is no exaggeration to say that the schools of Nebraska have made more progress during this last seven-year period than during any other equal period in the history of the state. The number of school districts has been reduced from 5,924 to approximately 3,600. This consolidation of schools has reduced the cost of education per pupil and increased the efficiency of classroom work in practically all of the schools affected. But this vigorous school consolidation program has met with stubborn resistance in many rural communities. Whole counties, in fact, are resisting the move toward consolidation and prefer to remain on a basis of 50 years ago. This rural sentiment is so powerful that it has positioned for repeal of the new commissioner system of education. This repeal proposal will be on the November election ballots. Everyone who knows anything about education in Nebraska will probably agree that it is the most important education measure that people have ever been called upon to consider. And it is by no means a one-sided battle and the outcome is far from certain. The State School Boards Association is making a vigorous campaign for the commissioner system. This comes in spite of the fact that the repeal amendment is sponsored by a portion of the school boards of the state. Perhaps half the school boards of the state are in rebellion against the present setup, but these school boards represent no more than 25 per cent of the school population of the state.

Unless the citizens interested in better education make a vigorous effort to vote down this repeal proposal, we shall go back to the old and inefficient system of an elected state superintendent. W. T. DAVIS

Police Reorganization Plan Would Strengthen Criminal Investigation

By Virgil Falloon
Revision of the Lincoln Police Department's organizational plan to give more importance to its criminal division has been recommended to the City Council.

The plan is expected to come up for discussion by the council Monday when Mayor Pat Boyles returns from vacation.

Neither Public Safety Director Emmett Junge or Police Chief Joe Carroll would release plan details in advance of their consideration by the council.

Action Delayed
Junge confirmed that the plan had been in the hands of council members for more than a week, but indicated consideration had been delayed by vacation absences on the council.

The police department has been operating under the present two-division plan, resulting from a Northwestern University Traffic Institute survey, since 1958.

The Star learned that the department feels (after two years' experience) that the present plan has overemphasized traffic supervision and has failed to give full emphasis to supervision in the criminal division.

Under the present setup, the patrol bureau is supervised by a captain with 3 shift lieutenants while the criminal investigation division has a captain but only two shift lieutenants.

The department recommendation points out the criminal division is thus handicapped with lack of supervision during the night hours which are crowded with criminal activity.

Presently, the 3rd or night shift is supervised by a traffic lieutenant with no supervision of the criminal division, it states.

Amendment Requested
The department requests the present plan to be amended — at least temporarily — to eliminate the unfilled position of captain of patrol.

In the move, a captain of police would be assigned to each of the 3 shifts as shift commander with a traffic lieutenant assigned under each shift commander. The traffic lieutenant would be directly responsible for traffic supervision on their shifts.

The plan would give greater supervisory emphasis to the criminal investigation division and could be accomplished with the present supervisory personnel and manpower of the department, according to the recommendation.

Proposed Plan
In effect, the proposed plan would eliminate the separate commands of captain of patrol and captain of criminal investigation in favor of 3 shift commanders, who would be largely responsible for criminal investigation activities.

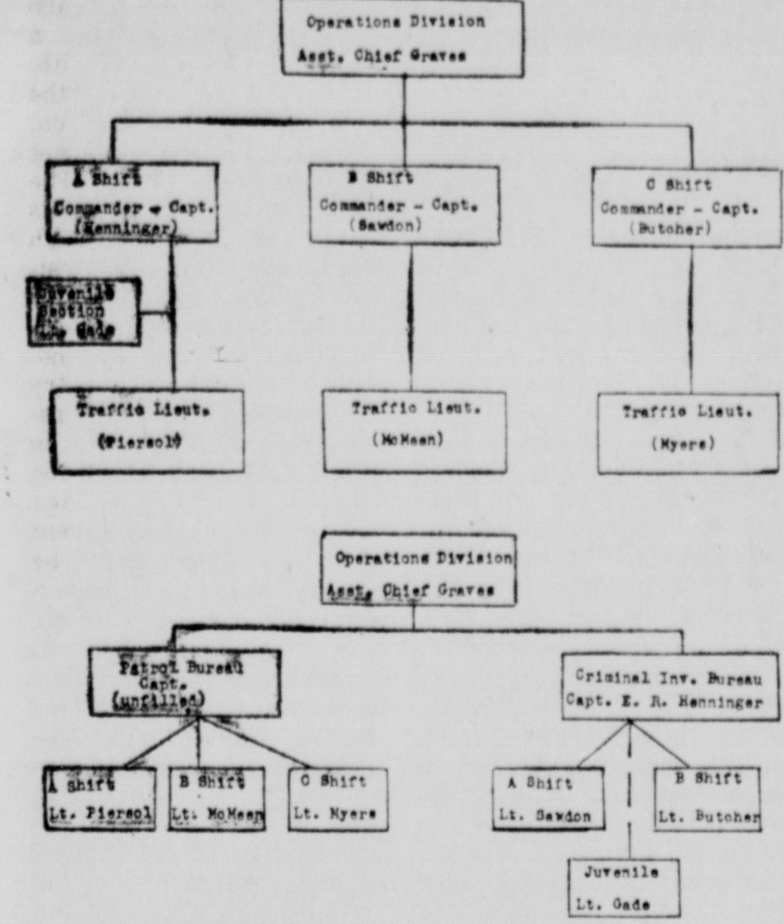

The 3 traffic lieutenants, with direct supervision over traffic and patrol activities, would be under the 3 shift commanders.

Personnel shifts seen under the proposed plan would assign Capt. E. R. Henninger (present head of the criminal bureau) and Detective Lts. Robert Sawdon and Robert Butcher as shift commanders with rank of captain.

Lieutenant Responsibilities
The present 3 traffic lieutenants, Lts. Harold Piersol, Robert McMen and Robert Myers, would be directly responsible for traffic and patrol operations under the shift commanders.

The captain of patrol position has remained unfilled since Asst. Police Chief O. L. Graves was promoted to head the Operations Division, comprising traffic and criminal investigation activities.

No changes will be made in the Services Division, headed by Asst. Chief Willis Manchester, which contains communications and records, personnel and training, traffic engineering and safety, and planning bureaus.

Proposed Police Reorganization
The proposed and the present organization plans for the Police Department's Operations Division are shown above. The top chart is the proposed plan with "shift commanders" while the bottom one shows the present setup and assigned personnel. No change would be made in the Services Division. (Star Chart.)

Controversial Airlift Starts

Nairobi, Kenya (AP) — Negro students began flying to America Sunday in an airlift whose financing was surrounded by political controversy in the United States.

The first plane loads of 144 students left from Nairobi airport Sunday. Some of the remaining 130 students will leave Monday and the rest next week. All will study in U.S. universities under scholarships.

The $100,000 for the airlift was provided by the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation, named after the brother of the U.S. Democratic presidential nominee, Sen. John F. Kennedy. Republicans charged the Senator agreed to underwrite the airlift as a political gesture. Kennedy said he had agreed on the condition that he receive no publicity and only after the U.S. State Department had refused the money.

Knowledge Of Oil Data Is Suggested

... FOR WESTERN NEWSMEN
Lincoln Star Special
Kimball—Attention Western Nebraska newspaper men! Now is the hour to get caught up on the latest oil lingo and data.

Or so warns Art Hendrickson, publisher of the Kimball County Observer. He issued the warning at the annual meeting of the Western Nebraska District of the Nebraska Press Association.

"Oilmen speak their own language," Hendrickson told the 96 newsmen attending.

"Good Average"
The local publisher also noted that nearly 2,500 oil wells have been drilled in Kimball County in the past 10 years with 1,760 producers.

"That's a good average," he added.

In order to cover oil news, he claimed, newsmen will have to be caught up with the oilman's jargon and technique.

Officers elected were Don Huls of the Chadron Record, president, and Eddy Sykes of the Keith County News, Ogallala, vice-president and secretary-treasurer.

Conducting the business sessions was Fred Rose, Bayard publisher.

The group also accepted Ogallala Publisher W. E. Buechler's invitation to hold the 1961 Western session in his town.

August Weather Assumed Role Of A 'Troublemaker'

Weather was a troublemaker during August.

Many grass and timber fires were started by lightning in the western part of the state, according to the United States Department of Commerce Weather Bureau in Lincoln.

One death was caused by lightning and another by a tornado during August, according to the department.

Temperatures were slightly above the long-term means in mid-Nebraska. Both eastern and western sections had temperatures below the long-term means.

Only A Few
Only a few scattered areas in the eastern third of Nebraska reached the 100-degree mark during August.

Nearly all points in the western half of the state reported 100 degrees or higher on at least one occasion during August.

Curtis and McCook reported the highest temperature during August — 108 degrees.

At many eastern communities, thundershowers on August 17th and 23rd accounted for a large part of their monthly totals. Totals on these days equalled as much as 5 inches.

Many warmer days were humid.

Lowest temperatures at many stations occurred on the 26th of August. But, a number of eastern points were cooler on the 10th or 11th.

Stan Delaplane's POSTCARD

Just about everybody in our neighborhood has gone to see "Psycho," the Alfred Hitchcock thriller movie. Most of us—especially the teen-age crowd—intend to see it again.

"I just SCREAMED! And that night I locked all the bedroom doors and I would not even let my mother in!"

That is one report I got. I got it out of the locked bedroom. Where NOBODY can come in until we get over our shock.

We know one girl who has seen this movie five times.

She sees it every time she gets her allowance.

So naturally, the other night I must dust down to the movies. To see what all the shrieking is about.

There was a long line of people at the show—they will only seat you at the beginning. And I don't think they let you out while it is going on.

A loudspeaker was carrying a sound track made by Mr. Hitchcock.

He said it was absolutely necessary—he gave it the British pronunciation like "nessary." He said you absolutely could not come in in the middle.

The loudspeaker then let out a couple of female shrieks that would turn your blood to ice. And the ticket taker began letting us all in.

A few months ago, I was reading the London reviews of this picture. The British critics rapped it.

"Contrived," they said. "Not up to the Hitchcock standards."

I do not know what standards they were talking about. But I must say that Hitchcock—and I met him once and he did not seem to be that kind of person at all. Hitchcock turned us all on.

Of all the shrieking and screaming!

We were all limp. And, after drying my palms on the mink coat next to me, we went out to have hamburgers. And let the next line of people go in and die.

Well, if you are reading the trade papers, you must know that "Psycho" is making a mint of money.

This means that we are in for a whole series of such pictures.

Once, when submarine stories were the rage, Mr. Jack Warner had a whole sequence shot over again. So the sinking submarine captain could die in the proper way.

We had just seen the sneak preview in a small Southern California beach town. Mr. Warner stuck his head out the window of his Rolls Royce limousine and said:

"I don't care what it costs. He's gotta die like this."

And he began tearing at his collar. His eyes bugged out. And he cried: "Agh, agh!" In a most ghastly way.

The townspeople on the sidewalk were fascinated. They could see that picture-making was no bed of roses.

As I said, a lot of us are going to see this picture again. Not me. Some of us will take a little time off and get over the last one.

The most horrible aftermath of this show happened to a girl we know.

"She was taking a shower, you know? And her little brother sneaked in and ripped open the curtain and began stabbing at her with a rubber knife!"

The girl, we hear, is in a state of shock. She will not be able to go back and see the picture again until she gets her next allowance.

ASK— Dorothy Draper

There are all kinds of international problems today, but what to do with French doors seems to head the list as far as the readers of this column are concerned.

There are any number of solutions depending on where your French door is, how the windows of that room are "dressed" etc. Bamboo or match stick rollups; vertical blind strips; see-through curtains rod-fastened at top and bottom; tie-back frilly ruffled curtains; plain, printed or plaid cafes; ruffled top, cafe curtain bottom; an 8-inch ruffle tacked all around the edge of the glass; Of if you don't need the light and to disguise the door, paint the panes and frame the same color as your walls. Another idea is to paste parchment paper over the panes transforming the door into a modern shoji screen effect.

If none of these solve your French door problem, consult your carpenter and get a new solid door.

Mrs. F. McC. asks: "I want to paint my living room this year and wonder what color you would suggest. The draperies are geometric design with gray background and red, black, white and green. The carpeting is plain gray. I have a three piece sectional black sofa. Three chairs, one white, one turquoise and one brown. The room is very large, 15x30 with open stairway. Everything must stay as it is except the walls which are now gray."

Dear Mrs. F. McC.: Why three chairs, each in a different color? Can't you possibly cover the brown chair in turquoise to match that other one? The wall could be a chalk-white or a pale turquoise.

Mrs. B. M. P. asks: "I have a champagne bottle which I wish to keep for sentimental reasons and don't want to just set it up somewhere. Please advise me on ways to use it in a decorative way."

Dear Mrs. B. M. P.: Unless it's a magnum, you are dealing with a rather thin bottle. You could take it to a man who puts ships inside of bottles and make it into a wall decoration or table novelty. Or have it wired for a tall, thin lamp for a "thin" table. Or have it mounted on a plaque with an inscription of your sentimental reason for keeping it. Or use it as part of a still life (bunch of artificial grapes, a champagne glass, a book) in a shadow box arrangement on the wall. But frankly, there is not much you can do with a single bottle!

Mrs. G.E.B. asks: "I would like a white kitchen with colored utilities. What color would you suggest?"

Dear Mrs. G.E.B.: It all depends on your personal color preferences. I have just looked at a line with all kinds of fascinating new gadgets that comes in petal pink, canary yellow, turquoise green, woodtone brown, white or coppertone. Just make sure you're going to want to live with the color you choose. Think about curtains, wall colors and accessories for color changes over a period of years.

Dear Abby— Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 51 years old and have had a few dates with a widow woman who is a little bit older. I tried to put my arm around her and she stopped me — saying it wouldn't be fair to her husband who has been dead for 21 years. I don't expect her to forget him altogether as I wouldn't want my wife, who has been dead for 9 years to forget me, but my question is, hasn't she waited long enough? Also, should I keep trying?

BART

DEAR BART: This woman is living with a memory, and apparently she likes it that way. If you are looking for a nice sisterly companion, she'll do. But if you have other ideas, you'd better find a live one.

DEAR ABBY: Recently you said some of the new hair-do's looked like an "unmade Army cot." There are five of us guys here on Guam who want to know how YOU would know what an unmade Army cot looks like.

SNOOPY

DEAR SNOOPY: My husband was in the Infantry in World War Two, and he described it to me.

DEAR ABBY: I am expecting a baby soon. If it's a boy I would like to name him after my husband whose name is Bill. The only trouble is that there are so many Bills in our family already. My father's name is Bill and my small brother's name is Bill. My husband's father is also Bill and there are three cousins named Bill. All the Bills are not called Bill. There is "Little Bill" (my kid brother) and "Big Bill" (my father-in-law), so I would appreciate your opinion on this matter. Thank you.

PAULA

DEAR PAULA: If you want to name your baby after your husband, go ahead and name him "Just Plain Bill." Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: The TV set is our problem. Now don't get me wrong. We have a TV, too, and we enjoy it, but when somebody walks in, we turn it off. When we drop in on our friends they have their TV going full blast and no one makes a move to turn it off. So you try to talk over it and that isn't easy. Your friends have one eye on the TV and one ear on what you are saying. This sometimes goes on for 2 or 3 programs. How can we handle this problem without hurting anybody's feelings?

STILL FRIENDS

DEAR STILL: Call in advance and make a definite date to visit your friends — then you won't run the risk of conflicting with their favorite TV programs. People who "drop in" have no right to expect undivided attention.

MOTHER OF TWO

DEAR ABBY: Regarding patients getting annoyed because they are made to wait in the doctor's office. A number of years ago I had an appointment for a check-up for my two young children. I waited and waited and waited, and the longer I waited the angrier I became. I later learned that three doctors had been working on a baby, trying to close an open safety pin without tearing the child's insides. Needless to say, if I am made to wait in a doctor's office now, I never say a word. I read a magazine.

Opening lead — eight of spades.

One important part of the game is to keep a cool head when you run into unexpectedly bad luck. The mark of a good player is that he can often overcome adversity when he encounters it, and does not let a turn of fortune swerve him from his course.

Look at this hand played by Boris Schapiro (South) in the match between Great Britain and Italy in the European championships of 1958. He was partnered with Terence Reese against the redoubtable Italian pair of Belladonna and Avarelli. The two club bid by Belladonna was in conformance with the Italian method of responding with the shortest suit to a takeout double.

West led a spade against four hearts. Schapiro won in dummy and played a diamond. Avarelli went up with the ace and returned the queen of spades, on which declarer discarded a club.

The deuce of hearts led then revealed the bad trump division. Apparently, Schapiro was doomed to go down since there were two trumps and a club to be lost in addition to the diamond.

But Schapiro, unperturbed, proceeded to make the contract. After taking the ace of hearts, he cashed the K-Q of diamonds. Had he ruffed a diamond at this point, Schapiro would have been beaten because Belladonna would have discarded the king of clubs.

Instead, Schapiro led a club to the ace, ruffed a spade, and then played a diamond. Belladonna, now down to a spade and the Q-9-8-6 of hearts, saw that it was futile either to discard a spade or trump with the queen. He therefore ruffed with the six, overruffed with the jack.

But the endplay caught up with him nevertheless. Dumy led a club and Avarelli won with the ten as Belladonna discarded his last spade.

The next club lead was trumped by Schapiro with the seven. Belladonna overtrumped, but then had to lead from the Q-9 into declarer's K-10.

1. It's great to feel alive and vital! So, stop putting off that pin-up rating and start pushing off the pounds. In answer to your hundreds of inquiries for exercises and diet aid, here are some suggestions (also see P.S.). As Cindy Robbins illustrates, making alphabet shapes is great for shaping the figure. Sit on floor, hands balanced at sides, and slowly raise legs in a "V" position. For added pull on waist and thighs, gradually return limbs to floor. Do five times.

2. Here's an "X-cellent" suggestion for the upper torso, especially the chest and shoulders. Sit on floor with arms and legs crossed, then fling arms in a wide eagle-spread until they reach shoulder height. Cindy, seen on CBS-TV "The Tom Ewell Show," inhales as she expands arms, exhales as she returns to position. Try figure fling 8 times.

3. Another way to "block" bulges is to "L-evate" arms overhead, stretching torso and finger tips toward the ceiling. Then, bend forward trying to touch head to limbs. Don't cheat by lifting legs or bending knees. This two-part workout streamlines as you stretch.

Seven times to start.
P.S. In answer to your many requests, we're repeating the magic Hollywood diet which melts off four pounds in four days, the star measurement chart (compare your figure measurements) and easy-do exercises. This reprint of the famous Terry Hunt diet plus the above beauty bonuses are yours by sending 10c and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to "Youth Parade," P.O. Box 46-181, Hollywood 46, Calif. Due to volume of mail, only those enclosing coin and stamps can be answered.

There is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE

Here's How To Work It

One letter simply stands for another, in this example, A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Demos Have 'Voice' Woes

By Jack Bell
Los Angeles (AP) — The sound of the candidate's voice has become a matter of more than routine concern in the presidential campaign entourage of Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass).

The possibility they might turn up one day with a voiceless nominee has caused Kennedy's associates to take every precaution they can to conserve the candidate's vocal cords.

The nominee's associates don't want a repetition of what happened to Wendell L. Willkie in the 1940 campaign when he lost the sound track because of over-use of his voice.

Cooperates
Kennedy himself cooperates to the extent of taking advantage of every opportunity to rest. But he seems to forget all the rules when he gets before a microphone.

When he works himself up to a pitch, as he does in most of his speeches, Kennedy doesn't seem to trust the microphone before him. He shouts.

This is all wrong, according to Prof. Blair McClosky, a speech teacher at Boston University.

Voice Coach
McClosky, a friendly, grey-haired, ruddy-faced Scotch Irishman, was taken on as Kennedy's voice coach after the candidate had an attack of sinus last month that silenced him temporarily.

When he gets a chance in the busy schedule of the nominee's campaigning, McClosky sits Kennedy down and talks to him like a Dutch uncle about his breathing and how to project his voice from his diaphragm instead of just from the throat. This is one method of avoiding throat strain.

McClosky wants Kennedy to slow down the staccato cadence of his Bostonian delivery. He wants him to talk in lower tones than the candidate usually employs in what McClosky rates as a voice in the upper baritone range.

Forgets
But Kennedy is likely to forget all of this when he gets going on the platform. He has some of the tendency of former President Harry S. Truman to speed up his delivery and increase his volume as he approaches a climax, as though afraid he won't get his sentence completed before the crowd cheers.

As he talks, Kennedy keeps his clenched right fist in motion like the course of the driver on an old-fashioned steam locomotive. At the same time, he is likely to keep the fingers of his left hand in motion as if he were rolling a steel ball in his palm.

Kennedy smiles frequently. But he can set his jaw in a firm line and look deadly serious when he talks about the perilous days he says lie ahead for America.

Security Council Fight Seen Over Rival Congo Delegations

United Nations, N.Y. (AP) — Diplomats said Sunday night they expect a fight in the U.N. Security Council over which of two rival delegations from the Congo the council should listen to.

President Joseph Kasavubu and Premier Patrice Lumumba each notified the U.N. he is sending a delegation to the council's next meeting on the Congo, set for Monday. Kasavubu and Lumumba each claims top leadership in the Congo.

Delegates generally predicted that the Soviet Union would object to the council's giving a seat at its table to the Kasavubu group.

Some foresaw that if the Russians did that, the American delegation then would object to the council's seating the Lumumba group.

Valerian A. Zorin will make his first appearance at the meeting as the newly appointed Soviet representative on the council. He arrived in New York earlier to take over from Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov, who was called back to Moscow.

The Belgian radio reported that Kasavubu's delegation passed through Brazzaville in the old French Congo en route to New York but that Lumumba's was kept from leaving Brazzaville airport.

The broadcast said President Abbe Fulbert Youlou of the newly independent Republic of Congo whose capital is Brazzaville, barred Lumumba's representatives from taking off for New York and told them to go back across the Congo river to Leopoldville.

Lumumba's delegation consists of Thomas Kanza, ambassador to the United Nations, and Jacques Lumumba, secretary of state in the premier's office.

Kasavubu's delegation, endorsed by rival Premier Joseph Iléo, is made up of Foreign Minister Justin Bomboko, a senator named Fele and a parliamentary deputy named Badibanga.

U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld in a note published Sunday, warned the Soviet Union against "the precedent that may be created" by its flying congolese government troops around in the Congo.

Longrange Atomic Planning Needed

Washington (AP) — Possible use of nuclear energy to propel huge spaceships, dig canals and harbors and heat or cool living quarters were foreseen Sunday in a Congressional study.

But it held that longrange planning must supplant year-to-year budgeting if the potentials are to be realized.

The glimpse into the future came from the Joint Atomic Energy Committee staff in a summary on "Frontiers in Atomic Energy."

Raul Castro Ready Anti-Guerrilla Forces

Havana (UPI) — Defense Minister Raul Castro, brother of Premier Fidel Castro, Sunday was reported readying a hand-picked task force of 2,000 troops to flush an estimated 800-man anti-Castro guerrilla group in the Escambray mountains in Las Villas Province.

Informed sources said the Guerrillas, split into 3 groups, consisted mostly of ex-Castro soldiers.

The sources said Ernesto Guevara, head of the national bank, also wanted to join the projected operation in central Cuba where he commanded part of the Castro revolutionary forces which overthrew dictator Fulgencio Batista.

Guevara, an Argentine who joined Castro's revolution in its early stages in Mexico, has not been seen in Havana for more than a week and there was speculation that he already had gone to Las Villas to help crush the rebels.

Premier Castro last Friday publicly admitted the existence of the guerrilla force but warned that it would be wiped out just as other anti-Castro groups had been in Pinar Del Rio Province.

He said 3 rebels had been captured in the Escambray area last Thursday.

Observers said Castro apparently was worried that the new guerrilla force, if it grows stronger and becomes sufficiently entrenched in the mountains, might tie up many government troops and also might be able to cut the island in half.

Informed sources said 8 Castro agents sent in to spy on the force had been captured by the rebels.

Russian Official Hailed On Cyprus

Platres, Cyprus (AP) — The Soviet Ambassador to Greece, Mikhail Sergeiev, came here Sunday for the opening of the mountain resort's annual festival and got an enthusiastic welcome from the crowd of several thousand. His reception rivalled that given to the president, Archbishop Makarios, while other foreign diplomats received only polite applause.

After the opening ceremony, Sergeiev was surrounded by Cypriots who wanted to shake his hand and talk. He arrived in Cyprus 10 days ago to arrange establishment of diplomatic relations between the two countries.

He has repeatedly stated Russia is ready to offer the new republic unconditional financial aid if asked.

School In Store For Miss America After Reign

Atlantic City, N.J. (UPI)—Nancy Anne Fleming, sleepy, but smiling prettily, began her reign as the 1961 Miss America Sunday by vowing to go back to the school books when her year is over.

The brown-haired, 18-year-old miss from Montague, Mich., who is only a few months out of high school, told reporters at a press breakfast that "one year in the public eye is enough for any woman."

She traded the title of Miss Michigan for that of Miss America just before midnight Saturday when she was judged the winner over 53 other contestants in the annual Miss America Pageant. She succeeded Miss America 1960 Lynda Lee Mead of Mississippi.

The title carries a $10,000 scholarship, and can be worth some $50,000 in modeling and appearance fees during the coming year.

The new Miss America, who was so busy signing autographs at her post-midnight coronation ball that she got to dance only 3 times, is 5 feet, 6 inches tall and weighs 116 pounds. Her measurements are 35-22-35.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Fleming, were among the 18,000 persons who saw the new Miss America crowned in convention hall at the climax of 4 nights of judging. The father is Michigan representative for a Pennsylvania manufacturing concern.

The 4 runners-up to Miss Fleming, in order, were:

Miss California Suzanne Marie Reamo, 20, of La Mesa, Miss North Carolina Ann Herring, 19, of Winston-Salem.

Miss District of Columbia Ruth Rea, 18, of Chevy Chase, Md.

Miss Indiana Tommie Lou Glaze, 21, of Culver.

The scholarship — and the travel — that go with the title were uppermost in Miss America's mind. A student at Montague high school, from which she was graduated this year, Miss Fleming already had 4 scholarships to enter college this fall.

She said she still plans entering Michigan State University when her reign is over next year to study home economics and journalism. She has her hopes set on a career as a fashion and food writer for a magazine, television or a newspaper.

"It's going to be a little difficult to come home down to earth then," she said with a smile, adding that she felt missing out on college this year was better than having college interrupted once she started.

Miss America is the oldest of 6 children. She worked as both a life guard and drug store clerk this summer in between planning for the contests and then the Miss America Pageant.

She said that up to the point of her coronation she felt her life was typical of the average American girl. Now, she added, "I feel as though I'm coming out of a daze. I'm a little tired."

She got only 3 hours sleep after the ball before getting up early to meet reporters. Her pretty and open smile rarely faded as she spent more than an hour posing for press photographers. She later left for New York City to begin her busy round of duties.

Traffic Deaths In State For August Are 34

August traffic deaths in Nebraska numbered 34, to make it the highest month of the year thus far. However, this was a decrease under the 49 deaths during August of last year, and enabled Nebraska to experience a decrease every month thus far this year.

The August fatalities brought the 1960 total to 169, a decrease under the 229 for the first eight months of 1959.

Colonel C. J. Sanders, "Nebraska Safety Patrol," said, "The large number of traffic deaths, during August, as compared to the past months of this year, is explained, in part, by heavier travel and increased number of traffic violations. The Highway Department has reported an increase in traffic on most of the state's highways. For the past month of July, the Patrol stopped a record high of 24,786 motorists for traffic violations."

The Patrol's records show that of August's 34 traffic deaths, 15 were the result of two-car accidents, 10 were in one-car accidents, 4 were pedestrians, 3 were in railroad crossing accidents, and two were bicyclists.

The Patrol report also showed that 23 of the August deaths were on highways, 7 were on county roads, and 4 on city streets.

As in past months of 1960, daytime accidents claimed the majority of the deaths with 20, while night-time accidents claimed 14.

MOVE TO CITIES WILL CONTINUE

Washington (UPI) — Two Americans out of 10 now live in the larger cities, and 90 years from now the figure may be 9 out of 10, a private population research group reported Sunday.

The rush to metropolitan areas has been worldwide, the organization said — pointing to the fact that 61 of the world's cities now have a million or more residents, compared to only 10 in 1900.

It said the tendency could be an unfortunate one for the poorer countries.

The report, issued by the non-profit Population Reference Bureau, Inc., said a continuation of the trend would put 90% of the U.S. population in cities of 20,000 or more people by the year 2050.

At present, the report said, one out of 10 Americans lives in one of the nation's 5 biggest cities — New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Philadelphia and Detroit.

These metropolitan giants have more than doubled in size since the turn of the century, growing from a combined population of 7.6 million in 1900 to a 1960 figure of 17.3 million.

To sum up the situation, the bureau offered this quote from Luther H. Gulick, president of the Government Affairs Institute:

"From now on, most Americans will be born, grow up, live, work and die in great metropolitan complexes; some in the cities, some in the expanding suburbs, but mostly in urban surroundings."

"From now on we are an urbanized civilization."

Revenue From State-Owned Airports Up 17%

Income from Nebraska's 5 state-owned airports totaled $344,822 for the fiscal year which ended June 30, a 17% hike over the previous year, State Aeronautics Director Jack D. Obbink has reported.

More than half of the $49,827 increase, $25,989, came from a jump in receipts from the rental of buildings for grain storage.

The airports, built and operated as Army air bases during World War II, are located at Bruning, Fairmont, Harvard, McCook and Scribner.

Title to the airports was acquired by the department from the federal government after the war.

The department spent $164,380 for the property and improvements, including purchase of a new twin-engine plane.

Airport personnel salaries totaled $52,615; operating expenses, $44,326; maintenance and repairs, $14,874, and supplies, $5,990.

Then the bureau added this rather gloomy assessment of the trend:

"From the socio-economic and humanitarian points of view, the trek to the cities in the underdeveloped countries will continue to be more of a curse than a blessing as it absorbs limited capital and generates tension."

As an example of the size already reached in this urban boom, the report pointed out that the New York-North-eastern New Jersey complex has more people (14.5 million) than the combined populations of Australia and New Zealand, and almost half as many as Mexico.

Ex-LAFB Navigator Gets 1,500 Hour Pin

Capt. Funk is now a master navigator with the 4042nd Strategic Wing at Sawyer AFB. He had flown about 1,800 hours—over 300 missions—from the Lincoln Air Force Base.

Four new Lincoln voting precincts have been added for the approaching Nov. 8 general election.

Lancaster County Election Commissioner Fred Cassidy said that 5 "top heavy" precincts in growth areas of the city were subdivided to create 4 new ones.

This increases city precincts to 108. No changes were made in the 36 rural precincts.

Clogged Polls

Cassidy said "promised" the redistricting move in the heavy districts following last May's marathon election when a near-record primary turnout of 35,829 voters and the longest ballot in history clogged a number of polls.

The commissioner said the adjusted precincts approached or surpassed a count of 900 registered voters and had future growth potential.

Cassidy said a couple of other precincts are showing growth and may need adjusting in future years, but such move was "not logical at the present time." No changes were considered in the well-established precincts.

Last Adjustment

Last major adjustment in city precincts was made in 1955.

State law requires the election commissioner to establish city precincts in "compact and contiguous" units of not less than 300 nor more than 900 "actual voters" based on poll books of the last presidential election and make such changes as may be deemed necessary.

Though voter registration will range from 200 to 750 in the city precincts, Cassidy noted geographical considerations are also involved. For instance, the smallest precinct population-wise is one of the largest geographically.

5 Revised

In the redistricting move, 4 precincts in the northwest section of the city were revised and one precinct on the south edge.

Precinct 12-B with 966 registered voters was divided at Vine into 12-B-1 and 12-B-2. The former precinct was extended from Holdrege to 0 and 66th to 78th.

Also split was 11-B, bounded by 48th and 56th and Adams and the Rock Island tracks. It was divided at Gladstone street into 11-B-1 and 11-B-2. The former precinct had a 883 registration total.

Two precincts, 12-C-2 and 12-C-3, were divided into 3 precincts. The new precincts will average 562 registered voters compared with 1,686 total for the two former precincts.

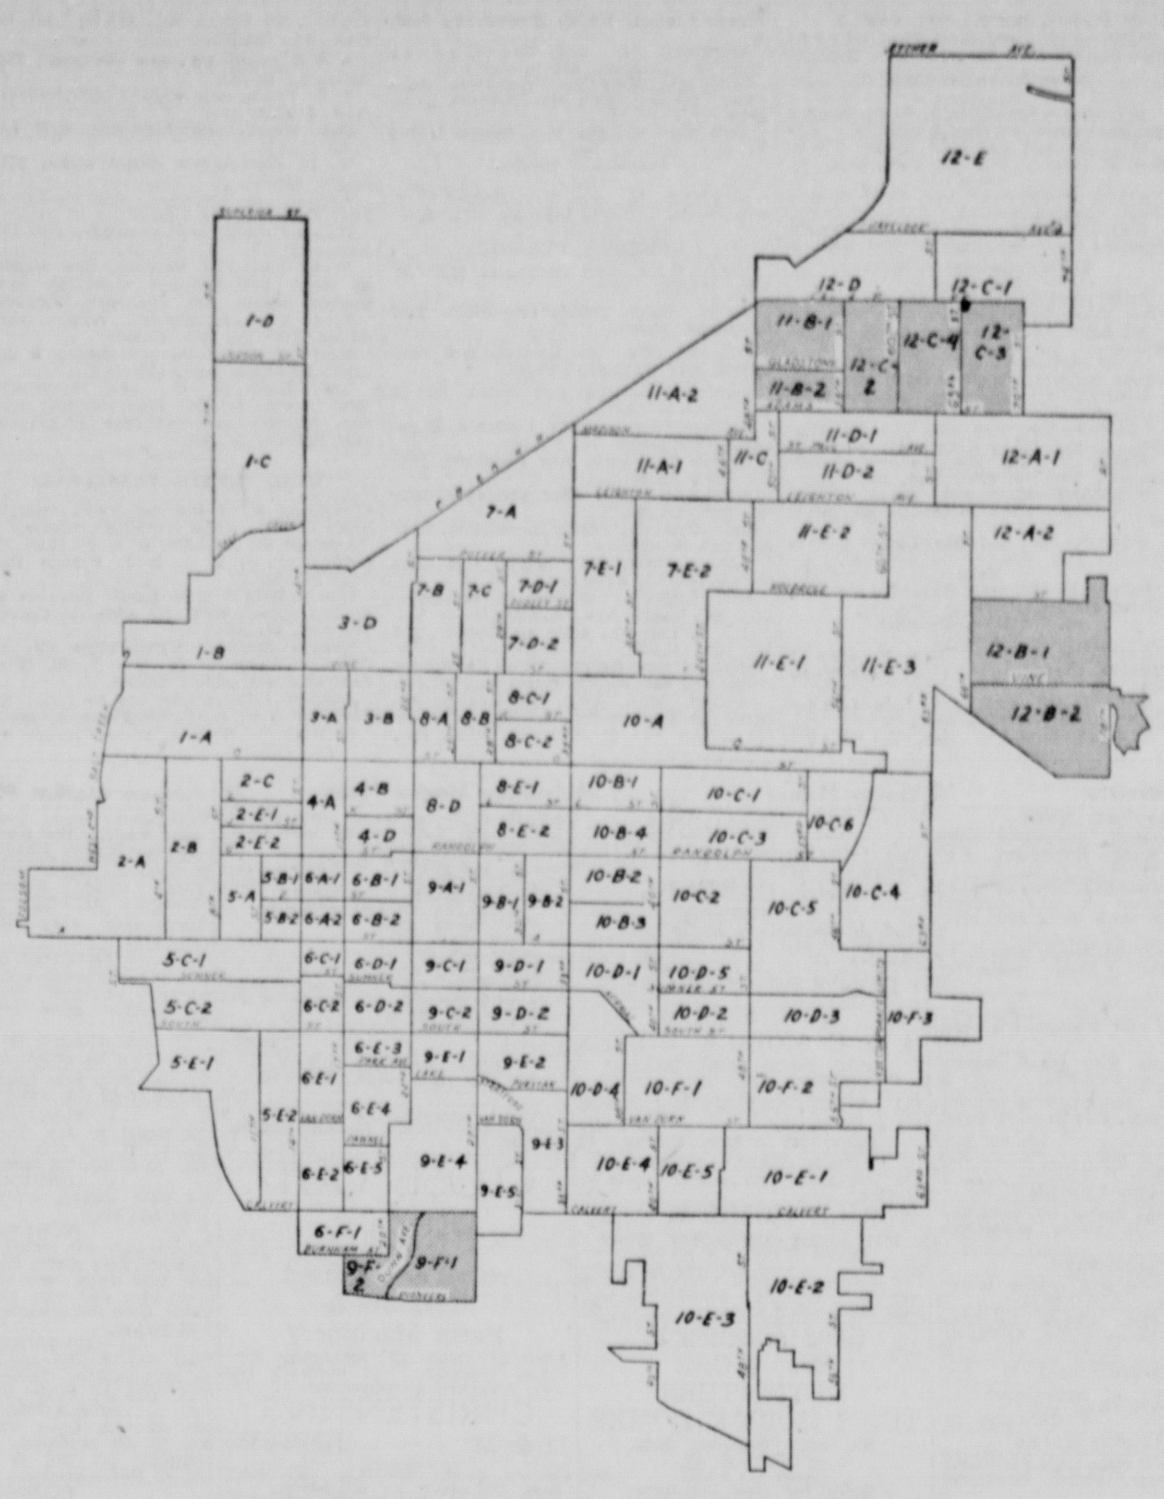

Precinct 9-F-1 on the south edge of Lincoln was split at Dunn Ave. to create a new Dunn. The former precinct's registration was 851 and growing.

Registrations Transferred

Cassidy said the registrations of voters affected in the redistricting of precincts would be transferred by the office staff to the proper poll book.

He emphasized that no voter would have to re-register for reason of the boundary changes.

He said notice of precinct boundaries, including the changes, and poll locations for the general election would be published prior to the general election as in past years.

Lincoln's voting precincts were increased to 108 with the creation of 4 new precincts. The election commissioner subdivided 5 top-heavy districts (shown as shaded areas) to create the new precincts: 11-B-1, 12-B-2, 12-C-4 and 9-F-2. (Star Map)

Voter Registration in Lincoln Up From July

Lincoln voter registrations have increased since the two national political conventions in July.

However, the Lancaster County Election Commissioner's office is reluctant to assign the increase to the convention or the approaching Oct. 28 registration deadline.

The office reported 76 new registrations in June, 175 in July and 338 in August.

The present registration stands at 54,117 as compared with 53,556 in the May primary and the 1956 presidential election registration total of 57,020.

The current total includes 31,224 Republicans, 21,622 Democrats and 1,271 non-partisan.

Compared with the long-standing 3-2 registration total between Republicans and Democrats, the June figures showed 34 new Democratic registrations compared with 40 Republicans.

July Figures

In July, the Democrats had 75 new registrations, close to the 83 registered by Republicans.

However, the August registrations widened with 202 new Republicans and 115 new Democrats.

There were 40 non-partisan registrations during the 3-month period. During this same period there were 422 re-registrations because of address changes or other similar reasons.

Four Voting Precincts Added

Lincoln's voting precincts were increased to 108 with the creation of 4 new precincts. The election commissioner subdivided 5 top-heavy districts (shown as shaded areas) to create the new precincts: 11-B-1, 12-B-2, 12-C-4 and 9-F-2. (Star Map)

Foresight Is Valuable Trait in Money Terms

By Merryle S. Rukeyser

The speculative and uncertain gift of foresight is — in money terms — a valuable trait.

The prevailing income tax civilization in which we live steps up enormously the cash worth of this quality, since the Internal Revenue Law makes the capital gain (or growth) route the almost exclusive highway to great wealth.

This writer visited the late A. P. Giannini, founder of the Bank of America, two days before Pearl Harbor. The financier, with a rapid, Niagara-like flow of words, questioned me as to whether we would enter the war and, if so, the impact on prices, employment, investment banking and other segments of our national life. (At the time, neither of us was privy to the impending sneak attack.)

As I listened, Giannini said to his associates: "Mr. Rukeyser here knows all the answers; but he won't tell me."

Of course, his assumption that I knew all the answers was basically wrong. In my years of financial analysis and reporting, it has been my good fortune to meet the outstanding personalities in finance, business, government and labor. And I'll tell you in on a secret. None of these personalities knew all the answers. The wise and experienced operators, facing the facts of life, started out with the assumption that there is inherent risk in making present decisions about future events.

Bernard M. Baruch, the elder statesman, who turned his capacity to appraise future prospects into a substantial fortune, confided to me that when, as a speculator, he pitted his judgment against the prevailing mood at the market place, he found a need to sell himself on the ideal that he could conceivably be right whereas larger numbers could be mistaken.

Baruch accomplished this attitude by reading and rereading a little book written more than a century ago by Reverend Mackay under the title, "Extraordinary Popular Delusions and the Madness of Crowds."

Where experts fear to tread in the making of educated guesses, those with less knowledge and experience are glib. My teacher of journalism, Dr. Talcott Williams, first director of the Columbia University School of Journalism, used to observe: "All men have opinions; few men think."

These memories flashed to my mind when I read the results of a recent Gallup poll as to economic prospects and their impact on the November election. The preponderance of polled opinion seemed to be that the Democrats could do a better job than the Republicans of keeping the country prosperous. This result was expressed after nearly eight years of high level employment under the Republican Administration of President Eisenhower.

The pollster seems to conclude that the Democrats' chances for winning the Presidential election would be improved if economic conditions should worsen between now and Election Day. The implication is that, if conditions move sideways or appear to get better, it will help the Republicans.

This writer, as a non-political analyst, thinks that the outcome of the election is less important on the business outlook than certain other factors, such as international tensions, foreign policy, our ability to compete in world markets with foreign manufacturers operating on lower wage schedules, and purely economic factors.

The annals of American business from the end of the Civil War to the beginning of the New Deal showed that neither of the two major parties had a monopoly on either prosperity or depression. In those years, businessmen, though divided in opinion, leaned toward the Republican Party.

The prevailing emotional setting may be traced to the fact that Hoover, a Republican, was President while the 1929 panic occurred, but some years later even Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, in a column, observed that Hoover did not cause the depression which, she said, sprang from deep-seated international trends.

Right now, both parties appear to want to perpetuate the "social gains," but the Kennedy wing in the Democratic Party purports to have more enthusiasm for Federal action than Vice President Nixon.

This difference leads some to assume that the Democrats would be more inflationary than the Republicans.

John K. Langum, Chicago economic consultant and a former vice president of the Chicago Federal Reserve Bank, recently said: "I really don't see that business in the first half of 1961 will be much different whether one party or the other wins. On the other hand, I think pivotal elections, through their impact on public policies, can have major long-run effects on the economy."

One basic long-run issue is whether, in accordance with the Democratic platform, we are to accelerate centralization of functions at Washington, or we are to follow Eisenhower's formula of encouraging the states, the localities and private enterprise to carry on those functions which they are able and willing to assume.

(Mr. Rukeyser will be pleased to receive inquiries from readers concerning their financial problems. Letters with stamped, self-addressed envelopes should be sent in care of this newspaper. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column.)

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain — without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all — this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) — the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug counters. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Hruska 'Thinks' Kennedy Hurt

... BY MEDICAL AID DEFEAT

Washington (AP)—Sen. Roman L. Hruska (R-Neb) predicted Sunday that the refusal of Congress to pass the Medical-Aid-for-the-Aged bill backed by Sen. John F. Kennedy "will hurt Kennedy a great deal."

Kennedy, Democratic presidential nominee, backed legislation of the type sponsored by Rep. Aime J. Forand, (D-RI) that would finance medical aid benefits for the elderly through increases in social security taxes.

Noting that both the House and Senate rejected this approach in favor of a more limited volunteer program of federal-state grants, Hruska said:

"You find that Kennedy's viewpoint has been turned down; that means there is not the support, even with his own party, let alone the other party, for that type of philosophy."

Opposed

Hruska, in a pre-recorded television interview (CBS — "Youth Wants to Know"), called the medical aid bill an "issue upon which (Vice President) Nixon and Kennedy were diametrically opposed."

The American Medical Association and other opponents of the Forand approach to medical aid to the elderly contended that tying benefits to the social security program was socialistic.

In response to a question, Hruska said he thought another war would be more likely if a Democrat were elected President.

"I would say," he replied, "that the possibility or the probability of a war would be lessened a great deal if the leadership of the nation were under one who has been seasoned for the type of leadership, national leadership which the presidency involves."

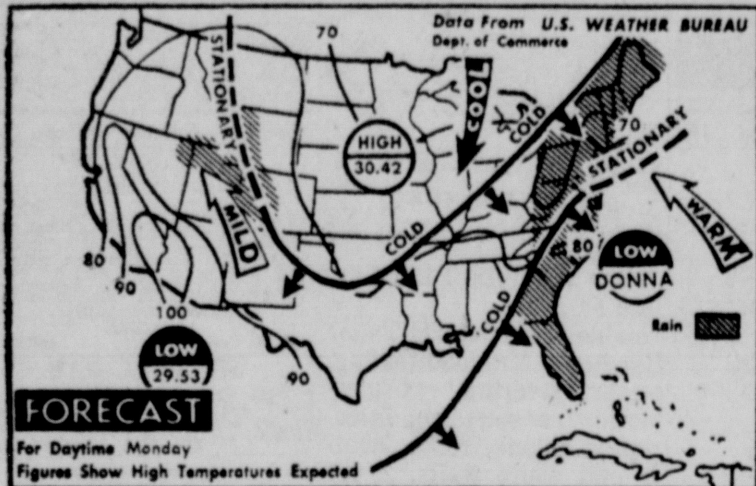

He said Nixon, the Republican presidential nominee, offers that.

Turkey Feed Costs Continue To Climb

Oxford — Feed costs are becoming a larger part of total costs of production to the turkey producer, a University of Nebraska specialist told turkey growers here.

This statement came from Fred Olson, Extension agricultural economist at the College of Agriculture, in a talk delivered at the community's 4th annual "Turkey Day" observance.

About 87% of the cost of producing a turkey can be considered one of several variable costs — those costs that vary with quantity of production, Olson explained. This one variable — feed cost — has increased from 52% of total costs in 1950 to 70% in 1959, he pointed out.

Other variable costs include cost of turkey pullets, fuel and possibly some labor.

More Vulnerable

As feed costs increase the proportion of variable costs to total costs, growers become more vulnerable to price fluctuations, he warned.

"The integrated firm (which includes both turkey growing and feed mixing operations) has a greater defense against price fluctuations than does an unintegrated series of firms," Olson stated.

This would be true because the integrated firm would experience fixed costs representing a higher proportion of total costs than two non-integrated firms with the same total costs, the economist said.

"Low prices that may cause foreclosure of a specific phase in a non-integrated industry would not cause foreclosure in an integrated industry. The risk to former growers under an integrated firm would depend on their bargaining power," Olson concluded.

Dr. John L. Adams, chairman of the University's Department of Poultry Husbandry, outlined some of the current research being conducted by University scientists, who work with 3 to 4 thousand turkeys reared annually by the College of Agriculture.

One experiment deals with turkey breeding to increase egg yolk size. Dr. Adams revealed. Yolk is several times more valuable than egg white. Work by Dr. K. T. S. Yao of the Nebraska poultry department staff has shown that various strains of turkeys differ in the characteristic size of egg yolk produced.

Beet Mark 'Possible'

Nebraska farmers are nearing an all-time record harvest of 1,156,000 tons of sugar beets, it was forecast by the U.S. Department of Agriculture in its September crop report just issued.

This figure would erase the previous all-time high of 1,111,000 tons established in 1938 and is all the more significant in that the 1960 crop will be harvested from 17,000 acres less than the total harvested 22 years ago.

Harvesting of the big crop is scheduled to begin later this month, according to officials of the Great Western Sugar Company, which operates factories at Scottsbluff, Gering, Mitchell and Bayard; and the American Crystal Sugar Company at Grand Island.

The first dikes to protect Holland houses from rising canal waters were high mounds atop which the rafts were built. Then these mounds were connected to form dikes keeping rising waters in the canals under control.
